“ He and his cousin are five months apart. When they were little he would come over to our house. They would play on this little 4-wheeler that was for toddlers. They would get on it together and take turns on who would drive it. When they would switch drivers they would giggle and laugh. They thought that was the funniest thing. It was the most precious moment of watching them two at barely two years old. They had so many memories together playing and hanging out. We will forever miss him and love him.
