“ First of all, apologies for being unable to attend the service; but we were without power for nearly three days as a result of the recent storms. Having said that, Richard will be greatly missed as a cousin and a friend who was always there to lend a helping hand to family and friends. I remember the Fourth of July weekend in 1985 when I was given short notice that I had to transfer from Charleston to Bluefield in order to begin working in my new sales office on Monday July 6th. Richard was the only person who helped me and my (then) fiancé move four rooms of furniture after 5:00 that Friday afternoon-getting back to Charleston well after 2:00 in the morning, knowing that would only have a few hours to rest before he had to be at a Fourth of July picnic that Saturday! This was just that kind of person-always ready to lend a helping hand to anyone no matter the cost or personal inconvenience! He will be greatly missed!

“ Most of my memories of Richard are recent. We were in the same class at St. Albans High School, graduating together in 1957. Only recently have we been in contact. and I learned that for all outer roughness, he was a gentle man who cared about others. I also learned that he and I were opposites on the political spectrum, but we were still compassionate friends. That means a lot to me, when a friend disagrees with me but can still call me friend, and I can call him friend, as well. Goodbye, Richard. I'm glad we made contact even at this late date. I thought for certain I would leave the planet before you. Save a place for me.
